NOTABLE NOVELS

MOFFAT, YARD & COMPANY

When Customers who Really Appreciate Distinguished Fiction ask you what is the Best Thing of the Spring, say

ARAMINTA

By J. C. SNAITH

You may be perfectly certain that this book will attract a large audience who will appreciate it very highly. It is called, by distinguished critics, the most distinguished novel of manners of a very long time. It is selling, already, in some sections, extremely well, and is capable of responding promptly and largely when pushed intelligently—which means among the right people. Once started right in your neighborhood, it will sell itself. 12mo. $1.50

Or else, confidently recommend

ARMINE L OF THE WEST

By JOHN TREVENA

The second large printing is now ready. This brilliant romance may now be said to be fairly started on a long and prosperous career.

I "John Trevena handles his theme with perfect mastery," says the San Francisco Chronicle.

I "He is an author of many great abilities," says the Hartford Courant.

I "A new literary star has arisen," says the Portland Oregonian.

In short, this is a novel and a novelist to look to and work for. It will pay you. 12mo. $1.50

EMERSON HOUGH.

MERSON HOUGH has had in contemplation and preparation 54-40 OR FIGHT, his great novel of the Oregon Trail, ever since the success of The Mississippi Bubble six years ago. Nobody knows the history of the Oregon Trail as well as Emerson Hough. He is first, last and always a Westerner. Filled with the love of a broad new country his parents left Virginia where generations had lived unmoving, and followed the star of empire. He was born in Newton, Iowa, five years before his ancestors rushed into rebellion over the slave question. As a boy he lived in the open and learned to "punch" cattle and to hunt. After graduating from the University of Iowa and after being admitted to the bar, he went into New Mexico to practice. It was not long, however, until his love of adventure and sport made him abandon his profession to seek a livelihood in the saddle. "E. Hough" lived all over the West for years. He hunted from Canada to Mexico, and scouted through the Rockies summer and winter. It is this life of the plains and mountains that he has made the special theme of his fiction. In 54-40 or Fight the scene is laid partly in Washington, in the midst of diplomatic intrigue, and partly in Oregon during the first rush of American settlers. The contrast between the luxury of the capital and the bravely endured privations of the "long trail" are brought out with fine effect. 54-40 or Fight promises to be the most popular novel of the year and it deserves it.

"Miss Minerva and William Green Hill"

"'WILLIAM GREEN HILL' is the most de-delightful small boy who was ever set down in a book. Coming as unheralded as his own burglar into a vast assemblage at attempts at depiction of the mind juvenile, he brings with him the joy of the springtime and of the open air and of 'youth, the dream.'

"He was just 'Billy' on the plantation where he had lived 'ever since he was born,' growing up among the merry plekanninies and adding to his charm their quaint dialect and amazing superstitions as well as an astonishing surface knowledge of the social system of his neighborhood.

"Under the severe direction of the maiden aunt, his only relative, he becomes 'William Green Hill' and tries to fit himself into his new life in the little village where Miss Minerva is the leading factor of primness and propriety.

"Naturally, the readjustment brings trouble upon the lad. He becomes a member of a group of four-Frances, the tom-boy; Lina, the femininely fearful and femininely daring; and Jimmy Garner, the little boy who lives next door to Miss Minerva's home.

Minerva's home.

"The book by Frances Boyd Calhoun, is the story of the adventures which befall Billy in his new environment. Their merit is in their depiction of child life. The psychology of Jimmie Garner is worth a dozen morbid novels. Jimmie's grieved whine whenever he is caught in the mischief he has led Billy into, his 'you all the time gettin' little boys into trouble,' is delicious when you come to know its inevitability. And Billy himself, with his cherubic countenance and his wonderful faculty for joining in all the mischief possible, is a real creation.

"The book is sketchy in character, but Miss

"The book is sketchy in character, but Miss Calhoun has made the sketches with the definite effect of a pen and ink study. One reader of the book, a man who has read all the best humor of the last forty years, declares that he laughed more at the antics of Billy and Jimmie than he had laughed at anything since Mark Twain's 'Innocents Abroad.' What more can be said?" (Published by the Reilly & Britton Company,

EVENING JOURNAL, CHICAGO, Fet. 13

They are "in the air." Read what the newspapers are saying:

"'Miss Minerva and William Green Hill' is the title of an amusing little volume in which Florence Boyd Calhoun has embodied a number of hilariously laughable episodes in the life of the character." Boyd Calhoun has embodied a number of hilariously laughable episodes in the life of the characters mentioned. Miss Minerva is a prim little old maid, decidedly 'set in her ways,' when William Green Hıll, the orphan nephew mainly reared by a good-natured negro woman with her own son, Wilkes Booth Lincoln, comes to live with her. William—otherwise Billy—is full to the brim of boyish fun and mischief, and in Jimmie. his next door neighbor, and Frances and Lena, boon girl companions, he finds helpful kindred spirits. Things happen, naturally, but Billy's heart and Miss Minerva's love both are sound, so the tie between them strengthens, while the last incident narrated has to do with the wedding largely brought about by happy Billy. The little volume fairly thrills with the merriment due to the odd pranks, stories and mishaps of the naturally depicted children, Jimmy being little less quaintly original than Billy, as witness these specimen views on God and education:

"'I like God 'nother sight better'n I do anybody,' declared Jimmy, ''cause He's so forgivingsome. He's 'bout the forgivinges' person they is. Santa Claus can't let you go to heaven, nor Dr. Sanford neither, nor our papas and mammas nor Miss Minerva. Now, wouldn't we be in a pretty fix if we had to 'pend on Dr. Sanford or Santa Claus to forgive you every time you run off or fall down and bust your breeches! Naw, gimme God ev'y time.'"

RECORD-HERALD, CHICAGO, Feb. 10

RECORD-HERALD, CHICAGO, Feb. 10

"As a rule nothing is more fatuous than dialect humor, but it must be owned that Miss Calhoun has produced an enjoyable first book. This story of an old maid confronted by an exuberant 6-year-old nephew is very genuine. For the reason that the note is never forced, we come to be both pleased and touched by the spontaneous sport of Billy, by his adventures, his winning naughtiness, his love affairs, bis make-believe and his matters of fact. When a little girl says that Esau sold his birthstone for a mess of potash it may or may not be funny. In the fresh and naive setting of 'Miss Minerva' it is fetching, but it is the brightness and general simplicity of the book that make it a contribution to stories of the Mrs. Wiggs order, and not a derivation from them. not a derivation from them.

"The antics of Hilly are shared by several other 'chillens,' and most of the book is made up of child anecdote and adventure. A thin red line of romance runs through the narrative, but it is romance observed in a kindly rather than a sentimental spirit. And there again Miss Calhoun justifies her sweet-natured and attractive story."

State Publications

JUST PUBLISHED

PART IV., COMPRISING "SOUTHERN STATES"

Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas

Compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER

Embracing provisional check-lists of the official publications of the above-named States from their organization. While the difficulties of compiling a bibliography of this sort at the present time make absolute completeness impossible, every effort has been made to obtain accuracy to the extent covered, by means of the coöperation in most States of the State Librarians, State University Librarians, or officials of State Historical Societies.

The work now complete (1031 pages) will be furnished at $10.00 in four paper bound parts, or at $12.00 in half morocco, A. L. A. binding. Subscriptions will be received only for the whole work

But 500 copies have been printed and there are no plates.

Only 125 copies remain unsubscribed

The attention of State Libraries, of the central public libraries, and of foreign libraries, is especially called to this bibliography, but it is also important to that larger number of libraries which cannot undertake to collect the State publications even of their own State and yet should be able to inform students and inquirers as to what is to be found in the publications of their own State and of other States. What New York and Massachusetts are doing in forestry for instance, is of importance in all States and to foreign students of the subject.

NOTES IN SEASON.

Brentano's, owing to very large advance orders, have been obliged to postpone the publication of "The Perfume of the Lady in Black," a remarkable detective story by Gaston Leroux, until March I.

A. C. McClurg & Co. will issue on February 20 "Bill Truetell," a new story of theatrical life, clever, amusing and said to be strictly in accordance with facts. Truetell is a manager of the old school, and his history reads like a page of the past. To those who know the mysteries of the stage only from "in front" the interest will be vividly MOFFAT, YARD & Co. have just ready "Lincoln's Birthday," a book of selections culled by Robert H. Schauffler from highly diversified literature; "The Apprenticeship of Washington," by Rev. Dr. George Hodges, a book dealing with the by-paths of Colonial history in masterly manner; "Araminta," by J. C. Snaith, author of "Broke of Covenden," who here gives a high class comedy of manners with scene in London; and "The Black Cross," by Olive M. Briggs, a novel of Russia.

HENRY HOLT & Co. have now ready Sternberg's "The Fossil Hunter," and Dudley and Kellor's "Athletic Games in the Education of Women," noted in last week's issue; and also "The Pilgrim's March," by H. H. Bashford, a novel of unusual merit about a hero of artistic tendencies and happy ways of living, whose career is contrasted with the selfconscious ways of the Puritans; and the longexpected "The Blue and the Gray, and Other Verses," by Francis M. Finch, poems written on many subjects in the intervals of a busy

Dodd, Mead & Company will publish March 10 "The Music Master," the wonderfully popular play of which Charles Klein has now made a novel, showing all the pathos, adventure, love and humor of the drama which has had such a long run in New York City; "Kingsmead," Bettina von Hutton's long-delayed novel, with a hero as original as Pam and for background a fine old English country seat, where Fam reappears for the Christmas holidays described; "The Royal End," the last offering of Henry Harland, brought to completion after his death by Mrs. Harland, with scene laid in Venice and Florence, from where it shifts to New England; "Culture by Self-Help," by Robert Waters, who hopes to save many a man from blunders which he made; and "Towards the Light," by Princess Mary Karadja, a poem purporting to be the autobiography of a man who blows out his brains, finds he has only killed his body and goes on as a thinking self in spirit life. The solution is intended to give comfort to all who fear for their departed friends.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & COMPANY have just ready "A Prince of Darkness," by Flora Annie Steel, an imaginative romance of Akbar, Emperor of India, in the days of Queen Elizabeth, written with all her imagination in her practiced style; "Old Jim Coxe of South Hollow," by Edward Irving Rice, who puts together a vivid picture of this character of Onondaga County, N. Y., who is first seen at the village store, where he entertains the crowd with his stories of horse trades, coon hunts, salmon fishing and all the other sports he has enjoyed in his happy-go-lucky life; "Adventures Every Child Should Know," telling the marvellous doings of Pinocchio, as written by Carlo Lorenzini and translated from the original, edited by Mary E. Burt, by Augustus G. Caprani, illustrated by Emily Hall Chamberlain; and "In the Valley of the Shadows," the story of an old family feud by Thomas Lee Woolwine, now "new régime" district attorney of Los Angeles.

Author, sometime master of Downing College, Cambridge, England. He has endeavored to describe the phenomena of life and the principal conclusions which have been drawn as to their interdependence, and as to their causes, in language which will be understood by persons unacquainted with the sciences upon which physiology is based. He has omitted all reference to experimental methods and to the technique of the science, save when a knowledge of the means by which information has been obtained is essential to a comprehension of its bearing.

Hoyt, Arthur Stephen. The preacher: his person, message, and method; a book for the class-room and study. N. Y., Macmillan, 1909. c. 10+380 p. D. cl., $1.50

Author is professor of homiletics and sociology in the Auburn Theological Seminary, and author of "The work of preaching." Stress is laid on the personal element in preaching; the preacher must speak the truth that has found him and so will find other men. His message, free from sensationalism, must be spiritual and instructive, expressing a stable balanced and comprehensive Christianity. Evangelistic, expository and doctrinal preaching are considered and chapters on ethical sermons and the ethics of pulpit speech are included to show what should be the underlying principles of the preacher's method. Index. "References" at beginning of chapters.

The leading theme is an unusual one, being a mother's jealousy of her daughter, who has become the sympathetic companion of her father, the mother scemingly forgotten by both. The collapse of the great steel cantilever bridge over the St. Lawrence domirates the story in a way, although it has little to do with the plot. One of the characters is an English engineer, unofficially connected with the bridge whose heart is wrapped up in its building; the second hero is a young American novelist. Both men are devoted to Jessica West, the daughter of a wealthy mine owner of Arizona. They all meet for a season in Quebec. Their many pleasant jaunts and conversations make excellent reading. Author is professor in Boston University. He deems the essence of sacerdotalism to be in a profound emphasis on priestly authority and on sacramental efficacy. The pith of his criticism is that so far as a church is controlled by its priests it has turned away from the spiritual ideal of Christianity and taken up a role hostile to the prevalence of rational religion in the world. He thinks the spirit, purpose and action of priestly hierarchies are surcharged with an intense hatred of evangelical teaching just as they were in the sixteenth century.

The author of "Broke of Covenden" offers an amusing novel of manners and character, with its scene in the fashionable London of to-day. It is written in a delightfully ironical style, each character being a finished portrait. Araminta is the daughter of a poor country parson invited to visit her aunt, the Countess of Crewkerne, a tyrannical old lady of seventy-three, who is determined her niece shall make a fine marriage. Araminta is a beautiful creature, possessing, however, a small allowance of brain. It is discovered she is a perfect replica of a portrait of one of her ancestors painted by Gainsborough, and her simplicity and beauty take London by storm. Her admirers include a duke, an earl and a great painter. Her aunt almost breaks her heart in her efferts to determine her future.

First published in 1901. Work is based upon the "Latin commentary" of Benvenuto da Imola (first delivered as lectures, at Bologna, in 1375). The text is taken verse by verse, a translation given, the narrative given with a running commentary, thus explaining difficulties as they arise. Numerous footnotes supply a key to philological literary and historical doubts. In addition to Benvenuto's, the work of many ancient and modern commentators has been drawn upon. The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 20, 1909.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are required to save.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the Publishers' Weekly solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the Publishers' Weekly is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE QUESTION OF DISCOUNT.

A PECULIARITY of the booktrade is that profits depend not upon the added price at which a bookseller can sell his commodities, but upon the margin which the publisher's discount allows him between a price of which maximum is fixed beyond his control, and the wholesale cost to him. Most traders can themselves fix a price which gives them an adequate profit. But in the booktrade this is not true—there is no going beyond the maximum. The whole question, therefore, of the possibilities of booktrade development lies right here in the question of discount.

It has been found by repeated experience that too large a discount is a delusion and a snare. The temptation to give a part of it away in the hope of increasing business is often too great to be resisted. Therefore, the point of trade reform has been to make a price sufficiently close to the cost of the book and the selling of it to attract the public, at a discount large enough to enable the bookseller to do business profitably, but not so large as to induce the cutting of prices. Fiction has been unprofitable, in a large measure, because the larger discount has resulted in a general depreciation of the actual selling price of the book. On the other hand, there is general complaint among booksellers that the current discounts are not enough to give a living profit, and this complaint has only too much basis of truth. The question of discount raises so many difficulties that it cannot be dealt with off-hand in an editorial discussion like this. It depends upon many factors and needs the most careful study. It has to be approached from many sides—that of the manufacturer and wholesaler on the one hand, and that of the retailer on the other. It has to be thought of with reference to localities in different parts of the country. In fact, there are few business problems more difficult, and as to which there is more need of the most thorough and painstaking examination.

There is evident a new rapprochement between publishers and booksellers, one of the first and best results of which should be a careful study on the part of publishers with reference to booksellers' possibilities, and on the part of booksellers with reference to publishing possibilities of this question of discount. It would be a good thing for the trade if the question can be "thrashed" out with all facts well in hand, and with a desire on both sides to get the best results. Let us hope that every endeavor will be made toward this desirable end.

THE uneasiness among the retail trade during the past year seems to have made an impression on the publishing trade, as is expressed in the action of several of the more important firms who are pricing their coming fiction net and allowing a liberal discount to the bookseller. This is a hopeful sign if two dangers are avoided. In the first place, the raise in price must be justified to the public in the quantity and quality given; and, in the second place, the bookseller must regard the amelioration afforded in the slightly larger discount as a contribution to his living expenses and an encouragement to larger endeavors, and not as a weapon with which to commit commercial murder and suicide.

NEW MATERIALS FOR PAPER STOCK.

Dr. James House Bute, of Houston, Texas, according to the New York Herald, has been conducting an experiment on a large scale in making paper pulp from sugar cane at the old mill of the Newington Paper Company, in Newington Centre, near Hartford, Conn.

Fifty pounds of pulp have been made and are being bleached. The fibre is fine and very tough. In its first stage the pulp is of dirty yellow color, but bleaches out to a pure white. The foreman at the mill says the pulp can be "beaten" into a very fine state and be used for high grade paper. The process of treatment is not divulged, but Dr. Bute is much encouraged by his experiment.

"The recent announcement that the chemists of the Department of Agriculture believe they have solved the problem of cheaper paper by the utilization of cornstalks," says the editor of The Printing Art Sample Book, "does not come as a novel proposition to those who are familiar with the innumerable attempts of a similar nature in the past. The long list of failures to produce on a commercial basis paper from substances other than those now in use is enough to make one skeptical of the latest announcement, and it is perhaps worth while to review the history of similar attempts.

"Joel Munsell, writing on this subject in 1864, said: "An account of the modes that have been pursued by the experimenters who have so long and arduously sought after a substitute for rags in the manufacture of paper would of itself form an instructive volume.

"As early as 1772 a book was published by a German, Jacob Christian Schaffers, containing upwards of sixty specimens of paper made of different materials. A copy is supposed to be in the Smithsonian Institution, but on a recent visit to Washington the writer was informed that it has been mislaid, "Munsell himself enumerated a list of over one hundred substances which have undergone a test, among which might be mentioned Brazilian grass, corn husks, cotton stalks, poplar, Turkish corn stalks, wheat straw, southern cane, as being the most likely-but to illustrate to what ridiculous extremes experiments have gone the following are mentioned: Banana leaves, frog spittle, hornet's nests. lily of the valley, manures, nettles. short, almost everything,' says Munsell, 'has undergone a test. Not only have numerous patents been procured for useless modes of producing paper from many of the above articles, but costly machinery has in some cases been erected to assist in bringing them into use, after they had been experimented upon repeatedly and condemned.

"Since this was written great strides have, of course, been made in the chemistry of papermaking, and materials that have been formerly abandoned as useless may be regarded again with new interest.

"It is perfectly possible, we grant, to make a good-locking paper from corn stalks, for example, and the raw material is both cheap and abundant. The same is true of a number of other materials, but it remains to prove them practical upon a true commercial scale.

"Only the other day a prospectus of the 'Agricultural Products Pulp and Paper Company' came to our notice. It was printed upon good-looking papers made both from corn stalks and sugar cane. The experiments, upon which the hopes of the proposed company are based, were performed at the mills of S. D. Warren & Co. The paper was run on a 24inch Fourdrinier machine and appears to be a perfectly salable product. If the estimate of the promoters are correct there is little doubt but that corn stalks and sugar cane will sooner or later be used on a large scale."

A "LINCOLN NIGHT" AT THE BOOK-SELLERS' LEAGUE.

THE "Lincoln Dinner" given by The Booksellers' League at the Aldine Association, on the evening of February 17, was according to all present an event of the season. The hall was fittingly decorated with "Old Glory," and portraits of Lincoln, prominent among which was a large plaster cast of a head of Lincoln. made by one of the speakers of the evening-Gutzon-Borglum-which stood at the lower end of the centre table. The original of this cast is at Washington.

After all had been seated E. O. Chapman proposed the following resolution:

Resolved, That we, The Booksellers' League, regret that Mr. A. Growoll is not able to be present to-night, and that we hope that he may soon recover from his illness and be with us again.

The resolution was unanimously adopted and the secretary instructed to send Mr. Growoll a copy of the resolution.

Charles L. Bowman, the president of the League, reminded the company that he was a Southerner and had been brought up with southern sentiments, but that he, like so many other Southerners, had learned to know Lincoln as he actually was and not as he was represented by prejudiced partisans. He then introduced Harry W. Knight, the publisher and lecturer, who gave an intimate and realistic address on "A Boy's Recollection of Abraham Lincoln." It was Mr. Knight's company, of which he was corporal, that was the first to arrive at the scene after Lincoln's assassination.

After the applause had subsided all arose and sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

Gutzon-Borglum, the sculptor, then spoke on "Portraits of Lincoln," expressing the opinion that Lincoln had been grossly misrepresented in portraiture. He said that out of the twenty to thirty portraits only five or six are very good, and that most of the pictures and descriptions are largely caricatures. He then read a paper he had prepared from notes made while studying Lincoln, his personality and physique. Contrary to the popular belief, Mr. Borglum does not admit that there was a grotesque or even an awkward line in Lincoln's physique.

Mr. Bowman, after reading an original poem by Lincoln, entitled "Memory," pressed his regret that Hamlin Garland, who had been scheduled to speak, was unable to attend, but that the Rev. Dr. S. H. Bishop would take his place. When Dr. Bishop had finished, all arose and sang "America."

Each guest was presented with a Lincoln Medal, taken from the "Lincoln Tribute Book," through the courtesy of G. P. Putnam's Sons; a copy of "The Wisdom of Abraham Lincoln," presented by the A. Wessels Co.; Lincoln's "Gettysburg Address," with portrait, printed on Japan paper, presented by G. P. Putnam's Sons, and a leaflet containing Lincoln's letter to Mrs. Bixby, in facsimile, and his Gettysburg speech, presented by R. E. Sherwood.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE METH-ODIST BOOK CONCERN.

At the annual meeting of the Methodist Book Concern, held in New York City on February 10, Dr. Homer Eaton, the senior agent of the New York concern, pointed out that they had been obliged to pay $15,000 more during the year for the white paper used in their various publications because of the advance made by the papermakers.

Delegates at the meeting said that some of the Methodist publications were being sold too cheaply, and advocated raising the subscription rates. No action was taken, however, the whole subject having been left with the publishing agents.

Dr. Eaton, who on the opening day of the annual meeting completed the anniversary of his twentieth year in the management of the New York concern, reported that the net profits for the year are $154,821. H. C. Jennings, agent of the Western concern, reported net profits for the year of $100,083.

With a capital of $4,000,000 the Methodist Book Concern has a surplus of $723,183, and contributed last year $160,000 to the support of retired preachers. The same amount, $160,000, was declared as the dividend for the current year.

One of the pleasant features of the meeting was the presentation to Dr. Eaton by the five department chiefs of the New York house with a beautiful loving-cup of silver on an ebony pedestal. It was engraved with his monogram, the dates 1889-1909, and the fol-lowing inscription: "Presented to Homer Eaton on the twentieth anniversary of his election as Publishing Agent of the Methodist Book Concern, N. Y., February 15, 1909, by the Department Representatives as a grateful acknowledgment of his uniform courtesy and kindness."

Dr. Mains made the presentation speech, and Dr. Eaton, who was deeply moved, responded with an expression of gratitude to his associates for their loyalty to the house.

BEST-SELLING BOOKS IN ENGLAND DURING JANUARY.

JANUARY, according to the London Book Monthly, is "a betwixt and between month in the book world—a sort of crossing from the autumn season to the spring season. what this January has been anyhow, but everybody has been trying to make the best of it, which is hopeful.

"The books of the new year have begun to come out, a little faint at the start, but pursuing—faint but pursuing. Of those given us by the month the best-sellers have probably been the following six stories and a very lively volume of memoirs:

Septimus. W. J. Locke. John Murray. Julian Revelstone. Justin McCarthy. Chatto & Windus.

The Flower of the Heart. H. B. Marriott Watson. Methuen.

The House Called Hurrish. Rita. Hutchin-

Henry of Navarre. May Wynne. Greening. The Long Arm. E. Phillips Oppenheim.

Ward, Lock & Co.
Favorite of Napoleon: the memoirs of Mademoiselle George, edited by Paul Chevanny. Nash.

E. P. DUTTON & CO.'S AGENCY IN NEW HAVEN, CONN.

THE EDWARD P. JUDD COMPANY, now in its fiftieth year of business in New Haven, has made an arrangement with E. P. Dutton & Company by which each new publication or importation of that house will be promptly received and displayed in New Haven. Both parties to this arrangement are confident that it will be appreciated by the book-loving public of New Haven. For obvious reasons it will not be possible to send these books out on approval, except by special arrangement with the manager of the Edward P. Judd Company.

OBITUARY NOTES.

GEORGE JOHN SEABURY, manufacturing chemist and president of the firm of Seabury & Johnson, who has been for many years an authority on chemistry and author of several books, died on Saturday, February 13, in New York City, aged sixty-five years. Mr. Seabury was a delegate to the convention which nominated Mr. Taft.

MARQUIS MARIE CHARLES COSTA DE BEAURE-GARD, member of the French Academy and a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, died in Paris on Monday. February 15. He was Paris on Monday, February 15. He was born in 1835. He served in the Franco-Prussian war and earned great honors on the field. Among his writings were "Un Homme d' Autrefois," ("A Man of Other Days;") and "Un Roman d'un Royaliste Sous la Révolution," ("The Romance of a Royalist during the Revolution.")

CATULLE ABRAHAM MENDES, the well-known poet, novelist and dramatic author and critic, met a tragic death on Sunday, February 8, in the railway tunnel at Saint Germain. It is thought M. Mendes opened the door of his compartment just before the train was clear of the tunnel, that he slipped between the tunnel wall and the steps of the train, and that the wheels passed over his body. M. Mendes was born at Bordeaux in 1841. He was buried with military and civic M. Mendes was born at Bordeaux in honors, but without religious ceremonies. A movement has been started to erect a monument to his memory. The novels and stories of M. Mendes have been favorably compared with the work of Hugo, Maupassant and "Gyp."

WILLIAM MATHEWS, educator and author, died on February 14 at his home in Boston, Mass., in his ninety-first year. Mr. Mathews was born in Waterville, Me., July 28, 1818. After graduating from Waterville College, now Colby University, he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1838, practicing at Waterville until 1841. He then started a weekly newspaper, which in 1856 was united with The Portfolio of Boston. In 1856 Mr. Mathews removed to Chicago, where from 1862 to 1875 he was a member of the faculty of the Chicago University. In 1875 he removed to Boston and devoted himself to writing. Among his best-known works are "Getting On in the World," "The Great Conversers," "Words, their Use and Abuse," "Hours With Men and Books," "Monday Chats," "Oratory and Orators," "Literary Style," "Men, Places and Things," "Wit and Humor," and "Nugæ Litterariæ."

RUSSELL STURGIS, architect, art critic and writer on architectural subjects, died at his home in New York City, on February II. Mr. Sturgis was born on October 16, 1836, in Baltimore County, Md. He was graduated from the College of the City of New York in 1856, and later was made professor of architecture in that institution. For seventeen years Mr. Sturgis practiced in New York City; then, in 1880, he went to Europe to reside on account of failing health. Six years later he became active in the management of art societies in New York and began to write and lecture on art subjects. He contributed to the magazines and had charge of the department of decorative art for the "Century Dictionary" and of art in general for "Webster's International Dictionary" and "Applester's International Dictionary" and "Appleton's Cyclopædia." His chief works are "European Architecture," "How to Judge Architecture," "The Appreciation of Sculpture," "The Appreciation of Pictures," "Annotated Bibliography of Fine Art," "Manual of Jarves Collection of Early Italian Pictures," "The Interdependence of the Arts of Design," and "A Study of the Artist's Way of Working in "A Study of the Artist's Way of Working in the Various Handicrafts and Arts of Design." At the time of his death one volume of his "History of Architecture" had been issued, another was in the proofs and the third in manuscript. He also made a revision of Lübke's "History of Art."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

Mrs. Reginald de Koven, 42 East Sixtysixth Street, New York City, is preparing a "life" of John Paul Jones, and would be obliged for copies of any letters written by him.

MME. Novikoff's reminiscences will provide one of the most entertaining works of the spring. It is to contain letters from the pens of Gladstone, Froude, Kinglake and other celebrities.

ERNST HAECKEL, the venerable scientist, who was seventy-five on February 16, intends to resign the professorship of zoology at the University of Jena, which he has held for forty-six years, and to give all his time to his phylogenetic museum, in which he is studying the evolution of species and groups in biology.

MARGARET L. KNAPP, whose first long novel, "But Still a Man," (Little, Brown & Co.,) bears witness to admirable powers of characterization, has more demands for her short stories and children's stories than her health enables her to meet. One of her children's stories has been translated into German, and she has also written a play which has been successfully produced, and to quote Miss Knapp "resulted in more royalties than much better work earned."

It is reported by cable from St. Petersburg that the Russian government has issued a warrant for the arrest of Maxim Gorky, the realistic novelist and socialist. It is presumed the authorities wish to put him in prison on charge of inciting sedition among the peasantry against the government and the higher classes. Gorky has recently been livink quietly on the Island of Capri, near Naples. It is rumored Russia is taking steps to secure his extradition, but as yet the Italian government has not moved in the matter. An intimate friend of Gorky's, the Polish writer, Stanislav Bzhozoffsky, is on trial at present in Cracow, Austria, before a Russian revolutionary tribunal, on charge of being a spy in the service of the Russian police.

Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott, author of "Sun and Shadow in Spain," writes to her publishers, Little, Brown & Company, from Rome, where she is spending the winter, that she is a member of the American Relief Committee in that city for the help of the sufferers in Sicily, and that Mr. Elliott went down to the island on the ship "Bayern," sent by that same committee, where he did good service and obtained some splendid photographs. his return to Rome, Mr. Elliott was visited by the King and Queen of Italy, who went to his studio to view his painting of "The Diana of the Tides," which is to be sent to the National Museum in Washington, and to examine the photographs. Mrs. Elliott writes that these scenes, though terrible, were wonderful and awe-inspiring, and that she had heard of countless thrilling experiences which she would write about later.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Connecticut has four newspapers more than 100 years old: The Hartford Courant, founded in 1764; The Journal Courier, in 1766; The Bridgeport Farmer, in 1790, and The Norwich Bulletin, in 1796.

The Trenton, N. J., newspapers on Monday, February 15, increased their price from one to two cents, the publishers finding it impracticable to continue one cent newspapers in face of the great increase in cost of production, especially in the increased price of white paper. The Sunday Advertiser will be increased from three to five cents beginning Sunday, February 21.

The Grafton Press Magazine for December contains, among other contributions, the splendid address on "Commodore John Barry, the Father of the American Navy," by John G. Coyle, M.D., which gave such pleasure to the members of the Booksellers' League when delivered by the doctor at its dinner in November, 1908. The address is well worth preserving in this form. Single copies of the magazine are 50 cents.

The Century for March is to be a "White House" number. Among the contents will be "Our Presidents Out of Doors," by Calvin "Our Presidents Out of Doors," by Calvin Dill Wilson; "Rutherford B. Hayes in the White House," by William H. Crook; and three sketches of President-elect Taft: "Taft as Administrator," by James A. Le Roy, describing his work in the Philippines; an anonymous study of "The Personality of the New President," and "Turning Points in Mr. Taft's Career," in which will be published for the first time two letters in one of which the first time two letters, in one of which Mr. Taft gives his reasons for declining the presidency of Yale University, and in the other discusses his appointment on the Philippines Commission.

PERSONAL NOTES.

GARDNER W. Wood desires to have it known that he severed his connection with the Publishers' Exchange Syndicate on June 14, 1908, and that he is no longer connected in any way with Arthur Leslie.

ALBERT B. FIFIELD, of the Edward P. Judd Company, of New Haven, Conn., and secretary of the American Booksellers' Association, will be in Washington, D. C., March 3 and 4 to attend the inauguration as President of his classmate [Yale, '78] William H. Taft.

GARDNER C. TEALL, 12 East Twenty-ninth Street, New York City, has been appointed American editor of La Bibliofilia, published in Florence, Italy, by Signore Leo S. Olschki, the famous Italian bibliophile, who was recently knighted by the King of Italy. Mr. Teall is a well-known writer on literary and art subjects, and is an enthusiastic collector of works on the Italian Renaissance.

It is worthy of note that Miss Lind-af-Hageby, the noted English anti-vivisectionist, who has come to this country to lecture in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, is the original of the Mrs. Home in G. Colmore's startling arraignment of vivisection, the novel, "Priests of Progress," recently published by B. W. Dodge & Co. Miss Lind-af-Hageby has created much stir in medical circles by her still unaccepted challenge to open debate with any champion of vivisection.

WE are pleased to note that our colleague, L. Soudier, the well-known publisher, bookseller and bibliographer, has been proclaimed a Laureate by the Société d' Encouragement in recognition of his important work, "Bibliographie Française du Vingtième of which volume I appeared last year. Emile Levasseur, Member of the Institut, in making the announcement said that M. Le Soudier fully deserved the honor conferred upon him, not only on account of the great labor which he had bestowed on the work, but also by reason of its novelty and utility.

THE oldest publisher, bookseller and stationer still in harness in New York City is H. N. Skinner, who, at the age of eightyeight, is as regularly at his desk every day at 281 Greenwich Street as any of his clerks. Mr. Skinner was born at East Hartford, Conn., in July, 1820, and came to New York | Short History of German Literature," by City in 1848. When Mr. Skinner established Calvin Thomas, professor of German literahimself in business in New York City Columbia College was located at Park Place and Church Street, and other educational institu-tions were in the neighborhood. Hence he did a brisk business in text-books as well as stationery. In 1848 Mr. Skinner also began the publication of the "Farmer's Almanac," which still makes its appearance regularly. When Columbia College, Columbia Grammar School and the other collegiate establishments moved up town Mr. Skinner devoted himself to commercial stationery, and his trade is chiefly with west side commission houses and wholesale grocers, etc. His sons, George H. and Norman H., are associated

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

W. H. PARKER, New Haven, Conn., has brought out a post-card showing the house where Donald G. Mitchell lived and a vignette portrait of "Ik Marvel."

THE GRAFTON PRESS will shortly publish "Sterling Genealogy," by Albert M. Sterling, in two volumes; and "Chafe-Chaffee Genealogy," by William H. Chaffee, a work fully illustrated.

It is reported from England that about 30,000 copies of the popular edition of Lord Morley's "Life of Gladstone" have been sold since it appeared last October. This book should have a new lease of life on this side the water also, if as effectually handled by "the trade" in America.

ABRAHAM FLEXNER, whose brilliant little book, "The American College: a Criticism," has made such a sensation among educators and college men generally, has been appointed to the staff of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, of which Dr. Henry S. Pritchett is president.

THE Board of Directors of the American Publishers' Association, at a meeting held on February 11, elected the following officers: President, Frank H. Dodd; first vice-president, Frank H. Scott; second vice-president, W. F. Gregory; treasurer, Frank N. Doubleday; secretary, Nelson Taylor; manager, F. C. J. Tessaro.

DANA ESTES & Co. announce that the first printing of their new Wales book, "Hilary Thornton," being completely exhausted by advance orders, they are obliged to defer the publication of this title until another run has been completed, that all customers may be supplied at the same time. It is expected that it will be ready to-day.

MITCHELL KENNERLEY will issue shortly "Napoleon and America," by Edward L. Andrews, of the New York bar, who points out with erudition and force the influence of the Emperor on America and of America upon the Emperor. The author portrays the relations of the great world conqueror and our newly-born country in thought inspiring manner.

D. APPLETON & Co. will issue in March "A hort History of German Literature," by ture in Columbia University, which will be added to the Literature of the World series, edited by Edmund Gosse. Professor Thomas has covered a period of over a thousand years, beginning with the "Religious Poetry of the Ninth Century" and covering the literature of Germany to the present day.

D. C. HEATH & Co. will soon publish Professor Charles Baskerville's "General Inorganic Chemistry" for college classes, which will be accompanied by a series of "Laboratory Exercises," prepared by Dr. Baskerville and his collaborator, Dr. R. W. Curtis, also of the College of the City of New York. A freely illustrated "Physiology for Secondary Schools," by F. M. Walters, of the State Normal School at Warrensburg, Mo., is also soon to appear.

The fifth annual convention of the Stationers and Manufacturers of the U. S. A. will be held in the city of Toledo, O., July 19 to 22, with headquarters at Secor Hotel. Applications for membership should be made promptly in order that the meeting may be representative and show the necessary strength to better the conditions of the stationery business and have any new plans successfully carried out. Secretary's address, P. O. Box 1121, New York City.

Funk & Wagnalls Company will issue before the close of the month "Parsimony in Nutrition," by Sir James Crichton-Browne, who gives an exhaustive review of recent theories of "what and how much the normal human being ought to eat," in estimate of which the learned author, who has his degrees both as physician and lawyer, differs with Horace Fletcher and Professor Chittenden. The second volume of the Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia is also just ready.

A. W. Faber, of Germany, whose American factory is located in Newark, N. J., have been 148 years in business. The factory in Newark is devoted exclusively to the manufacture of stationers' rubber goods, and its output includes an immense line of erasive rubber supplies and rubber bands from the 3/8-inch band to the 12-inch heavy parcel band. A. W. Faber's rubber bands are guaranteed to stretch ten times their length, and they are tested to stretch twelve times their length before leaving the factory.

Luce & Co. have in preparation "Social Psychology," by William McDougall, an Oxonian who has furnished a serious work on the subject now so predominant in minds of every calibre. The author studies national movements as determining causes in national character. In March, with the permission of Robert Baldwin Ross, executor and manager of Oscar Wilde's literary and dramatic estate, this house will put out the first volume of their edition of "Wilde's Complete Works," beginning with "Complete Poems."

Equitist Publishing House, Pasadena, Cal., is bringing out "The Soul of the World," a novel practically historical, since real people are behind all the principal characters. In the development of the story their views on sociological and psychological subjects are expressed in discussion. The keynote of the book is a mother's deepest solicitude for her loved ones put into an effort to show how a balanced land tenure can be easily and quickly secured, and poverty, crime and suffering thereby done away with.

A. C. McClurg & Co. with their well-known enterprise and great practical invention, hit upon a scheme of advertising during the holidays that brought them satisfying, definite results. They utilized the advertising space of the street cars of Chicago, and their neat advertisements of their various lines of books attracted special attention. We show a reproduction of the card for the children's line of Christmas books.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY will bring out on March I a new issue of the Pennells' "Life of Whistler," with a new preface as well as a few corrections suggested by sympathetic readers. They have just brought out a new and enlarged edition—the fifth—of "A Handbook of Oil Analysis," by A. H. Gill, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It is entirely revised, enlarged and printed from new plates.

C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING Co. have just ready "The Masquerading of Margaret," by Cora Gottschalk Welty, who introduces her readers to a sect known as the Amish, a sect akin to the Quakers in their simple, peaceful lives. This sect, coming from their homes in beautiful Switzerland, settled in the West, introducing there the quaint customs and the severe garb of their sect. The heroine had been a petted society beauty. Under the Amish garb her charming love story came to her, and in consequence she resumed her place in worldly society.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. promise a new novel by Sidney McCall, author of "Truth Dexter," "The Dragon Painter," etc., during the season. It deals with life in the southern cotton mills—a subject with which the author is most familiar. A new edition of Selma Lagerlöf's "The Miracles of Antichrist," which treats of Sicily and Sicilian life with rare insight, will be brought out during the present month. Its vivid pictures of the portion of that unhappy land so recently destroyed by earthquake and fire will always remain models of masterly description.

RICHARD G. BADGER, Boston, will publish on March 15 a volume entitled "Recollections of Seventy Years," by Frank B. Sanborn, of Concord, Mass. As the editor of the Springfield Republican, The Boston Commonwealth, and The Journal of Social Science; as the last of the founders of the famous Concord School of Philosophy, and as the friend, often the literary executor, of such men as Emerson, Thoreau, Alcott and John Brown, Mr. Sanborn occupies a unique position and gives in the reminiscences—probably the crowning achievement of a remarkable career—a wealth of hitherto unknown material. The work is divided into two volumes, one devoted to his political and the other to his literary life.

Dodd, Mead & Company will publish early in March "Culture by Self-Help: in a Literary, an Academic, or, an Oratorical Career," by Robert Waters, author of "Culture by Conversation;" and "John Selden and His Table Talk." The author points out how to choose a profession, the power of expression, how intellectual power is acquired, the secret of literary success, how great things are done, etc. A little later the house promises "Studies in Several Literatures," by Harry Thurston Peck, twelve essays dealing with "The Odyssey" and concluding with "Journalism." Among the authors considered are Juvenal, the Greek and Roman novelists, Milton, Tennyson, Longfellow, Emerson, Poe, Zola and Daudet.

JOHN LANE COMPANY have nearly ready "The Lost Cabin Mine," an adventure story by Frederick Niven. The author was born of Scotch parentage in Valparaiso, Chili, thirty years ago. The family returned to Scotland when he was seven years old, and later while still in his teens Mr. Niven was smitten with the wander fever and headed for the West, where for several years he worked in lumber camps here and there in the Rockies, striking off by himself afterwards into the mountains with frying pan, flour and blankets, and learning the ways of several Indian tribes, such as the Silvastes and others. Since his return to England he has devoted himself to journalism and authorship.

OLIVER DITSON COMPANY have just brought out in their excellent Musicians' Library two volumes of Grieg's works. The one entitled "Larger Piano Compositions" contains six of the more important works for pinanoforte—the Humoresques, the sonata, opus 7. Sketches of Norwegian Life, the Baliade in G. minor, the antique suite "From Holberg Times," and the well-known concerto with the orchestral part arranged so that it can be played on two pianos. The editor of this volume is Bertha Feiring Tapper, who has supplied a brief biographical sketch, a list of Grieg's works and a bibliography. The other volume centains Grieg's best fifty songs and has an elaborate introduction by Henry T. Finck, who is so fortunate as to be able to quote Grieg's approval of this selection.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS is about to publish "Post-Augustan Poetry from Seneca to Juvenal," in which the author, H. E. Butler, maintains that as a whole the poets of this period have suffered greater neglect than they deserve. Chapters are devoted to, among others, Persius, Lucan, Petronius, Valerius, Flaccus, Statius, Martial and Juvenal. Sir C. P. Lucas has completed a "Histery of Canada, 1763-1812," which will be published immediately. The volume ranges with the author's study of the Canadian War of 1812, issued three years ago. They house will publish next week "Kant's Theory of Knowledge," by H. A. Prichard. The author has attempted to think out the nature and tenability of Kant's "Transcendental Idealism, being convinced that even the elucidation of Kant's meaning, apart from any criticism, is impossible without a discussion on their own merits of the main issues which he raises.

BAKER & TAYLOR Co. will issue shortly "The Reorganization of Our Colleges," by Clarence F. Birdseye, author of "The Individual Training in Our Colleges," whose long training as a lawyer enables him to weigh with judgment and point out tersely the administrative needs of our universities. Mr. Birdseye is making a name for himself in his showing of how our educational institutions have developed from little schools based upon the home to great public institutions without a corresponding development in the administrative system, and he also offers remedies for this defect which will rereceive consideration. This house has just sold to a Canadian house editions of "Banzai," by "Parabellum," and of "The Explorer," by W. Somerset Maugham. "Banzai" has also been disposed of in England and is in treaty for Australia. The house has also found it necessary to reprint three books already twenty years old: Sheldon's "The Salt-Box House," Checkley's "Natural Method of Physical Training," and Cogswell's "The Regicides."

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY in laying out their spring campaign have made arrangements to put all their new fiction on the net basis, with a fair discount to the bookseller. In entering upon this experiment the firm has priced each book according to its size and importance, as for example: Alice Brown's book, which is illustrated with a frontispiece by Alice Barbour Stephens, a large novel like "Lewis Rand," with be $1.35 net; "Dragon's Blood," by Henry M. Rideout, a sprightly story of adventure in China, a twelvemo, with four illustrations in color by Brett, is $1.20 net; "Gambolling with Galatea," by Curtis Dunham, an amusing, ridiculous, farcical bit of romance, with six illustration in color by Oliver Herford, a small-sized book, but expensive in manufacture, is $1.15 net; "Through Welsh Door-Ways," by Jeannette Marks, a narrow twelvemo, containing four illustrations in tint by Anna Whelan Betts, which would ordinarily sell for $1.25, is $1.10 net; and "On the Road to Arden," by Margaret Morse, which is in the same category, a slight but clever love story, with five illustrations, is $1 net.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will soon have ready Stanton Davis Kirkham's "Mexican Trails," in which the author gives an account of his personal experiences among the Indians and Mexicans. A realistic novel soon to appear is "Human Fate," or Menschenwee, a dramatic picture of life mostly among the toilers, by "Querido," a native of Amsterdam of a titled Portuguese family long settled in that city. A third edition of "The Florentine Painters of the Renaissance," by Bernhard Berenson, is forthcoming, and the sixth series of Shelburne Essays, by Paul Elmer More, will be ready March 15. The object of James Allen's "As a Man Thinketh" is to show that mind has control of both character and circumstance. The fourth volume of Gabriel Hanotaux's "Contemporary France" completes a work which throws much light on the diplomacy of the great powers of Europe during the last thirty years. France of a century ago is alive in the pages of "Recollections of Baron de Frénilly," which is now published. The baron was an aristocrat, strongly opposed to the Revolution, and gayest of the gay when society was once more assembled in Paris, in 1796. Leslie Stephen's "The Playground of Europe" shows his rare qualities in a happy combination. "The Federal Civil Service as a Career," by El Bie Kan Foltz is designed as a handbook for Kean Foltz, is designed as a handbook for the applicant for federal positions, the office holder, the economist, and the busy citizen. It is the first practical book on the actual workings of the governmental machinery, and is written from a knowledge of facts gathered at first hand by an office holder in the U. S. Treasury Department of Washington. A fourth revised edition of "A History of Modern Banks of Issue," by Charles A. Conant, contains an account of the economic crisis of 1907. March 15 will bring a new work by Lyman P. Powell, author of "Christian Science: the Faith and Its Founder," "The Art of Natural Sleep," etc. The present volume is entitled "The Emmanuel Movement in a New England Town," and its account of experiments and reflections designed to determine the proper relationship between the minister and the doctor in the light of modern needs will be of interest alike to the general public and the clergy.

LOOK THIS MATTER UP!

Is your file of THE AMERICAN CATALOG complete to date? The last published volume covers 1905–1906–1907, and is as large in size as the preceding volume, covering 1900–1904. If you lack either or both we suggest ordering at once, as the edition is approaching the vanishing point. The market value of this Catalog in years to come will largely depend on its completeness and this suggests investment now, when the volumes are obtainable without premium cost.

of Society Brand New Kind Novel That Will Sell

By the author of "Chimmie Fadden"

The CLIMBIN COURVATE

By EDWARD TOWNSEND

What is more fascinating than an expert sleight-of-hand performer? And suppose that two of them—Dick and Betty Courvatel —make a fortune and enter exclusive society. What a chance for things to happen!

And things do happen, rapidly and surprisingly. The unusual adventures, the rare and fine characters, the delicious humor and inimitable slang, distinguish this from all other society novels.
